'Teen Program' Is Underway

The Retired Men's Social Club of Seaside is again sponsoring its "Teen Employment Program" and is soliciting the assistance of the community of Seaside and surrounding cities.

The purpose of this program is to provide employment for teens, ages 12 to 18. The program is also designed to give those teens out of school something to do, during the vacations months.

"We feel this type of activity helps reduce those meaningless and mischevious incidents that create havoc throughout the community and causes us us all to pay in increased insurance rates and local law enforcement costs, "stateed Ewalker James, Chairman of the Teen Employment Committee.

The Club hopes to provide as many jobs as possible during the summer and is appealing to those citizens who will have jobs for teens to contact their office. They remind all citizens planning to em-loy teens that the State minimum wage law applies.

"We are asking your cooperation in helping to provide the jobs we have outlined, such as grass cutting, window washing, car washing and other odds and ends that could take an hour to possibly a day to complete. Jobs of this type could provide employment througout the summer," James continued.

"Persons with no job openings, but who wish to help the program may mail donations to the "Retired Men's Social Club, 1637 B-, Delmonte Blvd., Seaside, Ca, 93955.

"Teenagers wishing to register for summer jobs should stop by the Club Officer to sign up or contact anyone of the members of the club. The Club is now accepting job employment from prospective employers. They may contact any one of the committee at the following numbers: Ewalker James, 394-9047; Edward Coleman, 394-7482; Alfred Dickson, 394-6061; Curtis Amos, 394-0185; James Stevenson Sr., 394-3582; or Frank Milburn, Club President, 384-9877," he said.

This is the third consecutive year this program has been sponsored by the Club.

Ali Analyzes Friendship At Alcorn Banquet

Muhammed Ali received a standing ovation after an inspiring and thought provoking address, at Alcorn State University's annual Athletic banquet.

Ali spoke on friendship and gave the audience many occasions for applause with analytical, yet, excellently worded statements about his subject.

"When a person extracts all from a friend in return for what he gives---he is not a true friend."

The man who has no imagination stands on the earth

He cannot fly.

He has no wings."

Ad of course, Ali recited some of his poetry. The audience loved it.

Ali predicted that he will regain his title and again be heavyweight champion of the world on September 30, when he is scheduled to fight George Foreman for the title in Africa.

No one can top Ali at describing how great he is. "When I get five million dollars for a fight", he said, "I deserve it."

Reinecke Calls For End To Mandatory Retirement

Lt. Governor Ed Reinecke recently called for and end to the mandatory retirement age of 65 years saying, "it's time we started utilizing the talents and knowledge of our senior citizens."

Reinecke said the mandatory retirement age of 65 is hurting both the senior citizen who is able and willing to continue working, and "also society because we are allowing the resources of senior citizens to go untapped."

Reinecke today urged Dr. J. M. Stubblebine, director on aging, to consider early retirement and social security earning ceilings as a major issue in future meetings of the Commission on Aging.

"We should not throw away 30, 40 or more years of job experience, just because someone long ago decided that 65 years of age is the mandatory retirement age," Reinecke said.

Reinecke also said it's time the earnings ceiling on senior citizens be raised so that the senior citizen can continue working, and still receive full social security benefits.

"The current law allows a maximum of $2,400 earnings for a man or woman on social security." Reinecke said. "This is not high enough and it forces people in this age group into retirement."

Reinecke said, "Government has a special responsibility to senior citizens. We should protect those who have given so much to our society, but the government has even more responsibility to see that the talents and skills of the senior citizen are not lost, simply because he or she is 65 years old."

"We must see to it that senior citizens can walk with dignity in our society, and the way to do this is to use the talents of the senior citizen," he said.

In addition to elimination of the mmandatory retirement age, and allowing senior citizens to earn more without social security penalties, Reinecke also call for:

--stopping the penalizing of the senior citizen widow who remarries by allowing her to maintain her social security benefits from her previous marriage. Current law eliminates all benefits if a widow remarries before 60, and if she remarries after 60, her benefits are cut in half.

--promoting the dignity of senior citizens through public recognition, such as designating a day as "Grandparents' Day."

--appointing more older people to boards and commissions where their wealth of knowledge can be utilized to help society.

Report Says One-Fourth Of Welfare Illegitimate

One-fourth of the children currently receiving welfare in California are illegitimate and half a billion dollars a year is being spent in caring for them, according to a report released this week by the State Social Welfare Board.

Robert E. Mithcell, a Norwalk, California attorney, and chairman of the State Social Welfare Board, announced the release of the report entitled "UN PLANNED PARENTHOOD: A STUDY OF UNWED PARENTS AND THE POTENTIALLY ENDANGERED CHILD."

Mitchell said the report points out that three out of every four illegitimate children are born to mothers 24 and under, and two out of five are born to mothers who are 18 and under.

The board feels that much of the problem is caused by the lack of involvement of the male, both as a responsible adult and later, after a birth occurs, as a responsible father, Mitchell said. Most studies of the unwed father show that fathers of illegitimate children were in many, if not most cases, raised in female-dominated homes themselves. Thus it appears that the phenomenon of illegitimacy is cyclical.

The report offers both long-range and short-range solutions to the problem. Education of children in the "art of parenting" as well as the responsibilities of parenthood is the ultimate solution, according to the report. However, the board has recommended a "protective services system" to provide immediate help.

The board proposes that both parents sign the birth certificate and that paternity be legally established, where possible, within six months of the child's birth. Further, the board has recommended referral of all illegitimate births to a county protective services agency which would be required to determine on a case by case basis whether or not a child is adequately provided for or endangered.

In its report the board endorsed family planning services and called for statewide standards for family planning consultants. The board addressed the abortion issue, stating that it did not have enough facts in hand to adequately weigh the long-term consequences to society of-current policy and law regarding abortion.

The board began its in-depth study almost two years ago after the release of its original position statement on illegitimacy. In this statement the board recommended that following the birth of a mother's third illegitimate child the court be required to make a determination of her fitness to retain custody of that child.

The present report's failure to repeat this recommendation does not constitutte a change of attitude, Mitchell said. The system now proposed would establish a case by case review of the living conditions of each child born out-of-wedlock rather than follow the plan set forth in the original report.

Mitchell said the board's report poses a basic question: Does society feel sufficiently concerned about the problems of the potentially endangered child to devote enough resources to insure adequate protection of this child's legal rights as well as provide for his physical and social needs?

Summer Job Funds Announced

WASHINGTON —— Secretary of Labor Peter J. Brennan announced the distribution of $300 million among approximately 500 manpower program sponsors as planning estimates for this year's summer jobs program.

The program sponsors--mayors, county officials, governors, Indian tribes--will be able to plan the hiring of approximately 700,000 economically disadvantaged youth to work for 9-week periods in subsidized jobs.

The Secretary said that $91.4 million of the $300 million--or about 30.5 percent--will be available immediately to Manpower Administration regional offices to enable them to provide start-up funding to sponsors of summer programs throughout the country to initiate program planning and job development efforts.

"We want to get this money out to prime sponsors right away so they can set up jobs for young people who'll soon be ready for work because of early school closing," Secretary Brennan said.

The balance of the summer jobs funds requested by President Nixon, about $209 million, is awaiting appropriation by the Congress as part of the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA) appropriation.

Of the $300 million, Indian organizations will share an estimated $4,270,100; Title I prime sponsors will share $294,198,200.

Reagan Sending Trees To States For Bicentennial

To symbolize nationwide participation in the American Revolutionary Bicentennial, Governor Ronald Reagan of California is sending a pair of his state's most famous trees -- the coastal and Sierra redwoods -- to the governors of each of the 13 original states.

He has suggested that the redwoods be planted to commemorate the Liberty Trees which 200 years ago served as gathering places for patriots in the American colonies.

Governor Reagan has suggested that the redwoods be planted on June 1, 1974, the 200th anniversary of the Boston Port Bill that helped turn the 13 separate colonies into one nation, the United States of America.

On the same date, a grove of 100 redwoods -- one of each species to represent each of the 50 states in the Union -- will be planted in California's capital city, Sacramento.

California State Parks Director William Penn Mott, Jr. is coordinating the Liberty Tree program with support from the American Revolutionary Bicentennial Commission of California.

Mott said the concept of a Liberty Tree as a symbol of political unity apparently started in Boston, where the "Sons of Liberty" rallied around a great elm to protest the Stamp Act of 1765. This was a revenue-raising act imposed by the British that bypassed local assemblies and directly taxed every transaction in the colonies that involved paper -- from deeds and newspapers to playing cards.

In 1766 the old elm was officially christened with a plaque that proclaimed it "The Liberty Tree".

Many communities erected a "Liberty Pole" instead of a tree as a meeting place and symbol of unity and defiance.

By 1770, Liberty Poles as well as Liberty Trees had become rallying points throughout the colonies, and some communities defiantly boasted both.

Feelings under the Liberty Trees became more and more intense, and the trouble came to a head in December 1773 with the famous Boston Tea Party.

The British retaliated on June 1, 1774 with the Boston Port Bill, which closed the port of Boston. The reaction of the colonies makes this one of the significant dates in American history. For the Boston Port Bill clearly demonstrated to the shocked colonists the need to band together in their common cause. By October 1774 the First Continental Congress had convened, and on July 4, 1776 the Declaration of Independence was adopted.

"We in California wish to salute the individuals and ideals that arose at the time of crisis," Governor Reagan told his fellow Governors. "In California, at the time of the American Revolution, the Franciscan missionaries were just beginning to establish their missions. But our redwoods flourished at that time, and they still endure, as has our shared heritage. The Redwood Liberty Trees should grow to symbolize a majestic bond across the continent and across the centuries."

Localite Develops Invention

Oris O. Noland, of 1575 Calaveras Street, Seaside has developed a new invention which is now in the process of being introduced to manufacturers.

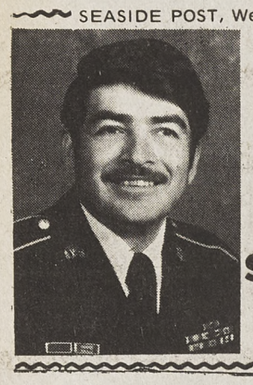
The invention consists of a portable device for cleaning paint roller elements which makes it possible to clean them quickly and thoroughly without mess or fuss so that they will be ready for re-use.

Mr. Noland now is negotiating for the sale or licensing to interested manufacturers with the assistance and guidance of The Raymond Lee Organization.

The Raymond Lee Organization is a company which specializes in the development and introduction of inventions to industry.

According to founder-president, Raymond Lee, no idea is too small to be considered for development. "Even though we are located on Park Avenue, among the leading companies of the world, our facilities spread across the United States and Canada to assist inventors in areas of creativity," says Mr. Lee

POPULAR — Mrs. Jack Mellor, well into her third year as parent-volunteer, is in great demand as a guitarist and song leader at Monterey Peninsula Unified School District's Del Rey Woods School in Seaside. "The thing that stops people from volunteering is that they feel inadequate, unskilled, but really, just personal contact, and doing simple arithmetic or reading to children all do so much for them," Mrs. Mellor says.



Today's Army NEWS By SFC Jose Garcia ARMY RECRUITER

To start the column off this week, I would like to welcome our newest members in TODAY'S ARMY. Mary H. Cool of Seaside enlisted. From Marina Johann Wilmot and Fort Ord was represented by Lea Kittock.

This week our Career Outlook will be on Finance Specialists. If figures have always held a certain fascination for you, the world of finance may have a figure for you.

A host of experts and specialists are employed in the financial world. Among these are bookkeepers, they are responsible for recording daily business transactions inledgers, preparing bills and sometimes dispersing and receiving payments.

Bookkeeping requires a high aptitude for working with numbers and the ability to concentrate on details. Some bookkeepers specialize in one or two kinds of bookkeeping work. Many are required to do accounting which involves compiling and analyzing business records and preparing financial reports. The majority of them are employed by retail stores, banks, insurance companies and manufacturing and service firms.

Most employers prefer high school graduates who have taken business courses. An increasing number of large companies offer on-the-job training programs for bookkeeping and accounting clerks.

According to the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics, beginning accounting clerks average $485 a month.

One of the largest employers of bookkeeping personnel is the Armed Forces. TODAY'S ARMY offers a four-week training program at Fort Benjamin Harrison, Indiana, for finance specialist which are the military equivalents to bookkeepers.

Finance specialists perform a variety of the bookkeeping duties such as supervising financial records pertaining to leave, travel and commercial accounts, and instructing subordinate personnel on proper procedures to follow.

In addition to a high monthly salary of $326.00, the Army also provides free housing, meals, medical and dental benefits plus 30 days paid vacation and the opportunity for advancement.

Fort Ord Wife Of Year Is Selected

Mrs. Joan Hermann, was selected by Ft. Ord as its Military Wife of the Year for 1974 and has been presented a plaque by MG Robert Gard, commending her selection.

At the presentation ceremony, MG Gard remarked that Mrs. Hermann had given unselfishly of her time and energy toward the betterment of the Fort Ord community as well as all the contributions she has made to the surrounding civilian community as well.

Mrs. Hermann said that she accepted the plaque in the name of all military wives who give so much of their time to volunteer activities. "Military wives will bloom wherever they are planted," Mrs. Hermann said. "We are always here to help."

Mrs. Hermann is the originator of "Monday Mothers", a new educational program for mentally retarded and handicapped children. Until Mrs. Hermann started this program there was no program on the Monterey Peninsula for the mentally retarded or handicapped child under the age of 3. "Monday Mothers" is the newest of the educational programs for the mentally retarded child, and the program developed here includes assistance to parents and families, community awareness, a swim program and therapy sessions for the children.

"The program is available to any child who needs it", said Mrs. Hermann. It served 67 families both military and civilian in the past 3 years, including every branch of the military service.

As of 1 january 1974, "Monday Mothers" became a permanent part of the programs of the Gateway Center for the Retared and is called the Gateway Infant Development Program.

A registered nurse, Mrs. Hermann has also worked as a volunteer in Red Cross Blood Banks and also has been a Red Cross Nurses' Aide instructor.

Active in St. Timothy's Lutheran Church in Monterey, she serves as a confirmation teacher and has been a member of the church's bell choir.

Her hobbies include golf, swimming, needlework, sewing and painting.

Mrs. Hermann is the wife of Colonel Ullrich Hermann, Chief of the U.S. Army Training Human Research Unit.

Prehistoric Art Show Now Underway

Prehistoric Cave Art Of Europe is the title of an exhibition at the Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art in the Main Gallery. Works to be shown are adtually serigraphs done by Douglas Mazonowicz duplicating the works found in Europeean caves. He has dedicated himself to the idea that the world's 20,000 year-old paintings now spoiling under the hands of unthinking visitors should be recorded, copied, and where possible, preserved. For 15 years Mazonowski has devoted himself to the task of accurately copying the finest examples of cave art on three continents. His painstaking work is now internationally recognized and six traveling exhibitions of his copies are now circulating in Spain, Great Britain, Canada and the U.S.A.

The Leonard Heller Memorial Gallery will feature an unusual exhibition of The Ship As A Religious Sysmbol as researched and illustrated by Fionghal MacEoghan. Originally from Ireland, MacEoghan became interested in the ship symbol in Israel in 1964 when he started a series of drawings of the ship motifs on many of the tombs. It became his major interest and using his own travels to further his studies, he sailed from Ireland to the West Indies where he lived among the natives for a year making notes on their sea customs. He sailed his own boat among the islands of the South Pacific and came to the United States in 1973. Currently working at the Los Angeles County Museum as a restoration potter in the Pre-Columbian department, he is also seeking a degree in symbolism.

The Museum is at 559 Pacific St., Monterey. Hours are: Tuesday-Friday, 10 A.M.-4P.M. Saturdays and Sundays, 1 P.M.-4 P.M.

NAACP To Celebrate End Of Discrimination

Virna M. Canson, Acting Regional Director, West Coast Region, National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, has announced a series of events among Adult and Youth units of the NAACP in the Western Region. Mrs. Canson said these events will highlight commemmoration of the 20th anniversary of the United States Supreme Court Decision, Brown v. Board of Education (347, U.S. 483-1954), rendered May 17, 1954. This decision outlawed discrimination in the public schools of our country.

'In addition to the commemorative activities, the Region and local units are launching a Spring drive for memberships in NAACP.

Membership costs are $6.00 per year for adults and $2.00 per year for youth. $10.00 and $25.00 memberships for adults are also available. Mrs. Canson called for men and women of all races who believe the NAACP's struggle is worthy of their support to send checks for memberships to the Regional Office, 995 Market Street, 16th Floor, San Francisco, 94103.

Commenting on the 20th anniversary of the historic decision, Mrs. Canson said, "While we commemorate the past, we are strategizing for the future. Far too many school districts have not complied. Many who have half-heartedly complied take revengeful, repressive action against Black students, teachers, parents and administrators. This must cease."

"We salute those districts having moved in good faith to achieve quality, integrated education."

"We serve notice on those recalcitrant districts that we will pursue legal and or administrative action to achieve quality integrated education for all children."Some of the scheduled events are:

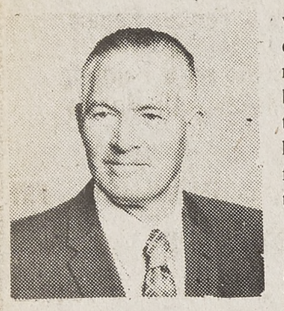
As I See It

by Mel Vercoe



The remarkable determination of the United States to keep the action alive in the Middle East can only be compared with a fisherman who accidentally falls overboard with a brand new anchor and refuses to let go of it all the way to the bottom.

As in Korea and Indochina we just can't believe there is any other way to protect America's way of life from communism than to openly risk military confrontations in support of long out of date colonial policies and unpopular dictatorships, all under the guise of being the world champion protector of freedom for those who want freedom as well as those who never heard of it and couldn't care less

So now we have American Marines and an aircraft carrier helping re-open the Suez canal so the Russians can move their warships more easily into the Indian Ocean, which of course will require Congress to accede to Pentagon requests for funds to build up American forces in the Indian Ocean. And if all else fails we can always look forward to a guerilla attack on our Suez work party, thus paving the way for the drafting of an army to go over there and make sure our forces did not get damaged in vain. Anyway, the local dictators in the area should not give us any political static, because the latest proposal is to give Henry Kissinger a hundred million dollars to feather whichever pockets he thinks need feathering.

In the meantime, back here in America, there are several settlements on the Monterey Peninsula that could use some free money from our Treasury to build some sidewalks, a couple sewage plants, some intelligent planning for employment programs, and while we are dreaming maybe some tax reductions.

All of which boils down to what would be our best system of priorities if we were really as interested in America's survival as in keeping the arms race going and trying to save us from inflation by getting us into another war. It is absolutely incredible that our America, supposedly the greatest nation on earth, is willing to pay international blackmail to some two-bit dictatorships in the Middle East to try to keep the oil valves open so the international oil cartels can bleed us to death with their greed for money. I would rather pedal my bicycle than pay blackmail to King Faisal, considering even the blackmail is on a day to day basis, all subject to a notice which could come at any time from Moscow to shut off our oil, period. We have got to adjust our needs and our guaranteed supplies so that the world's greatest nation does not have to get down on its knees and beg every time it wants to drive to the store for groceries.

Now When You Take A Bible -It's Okay

Churches of the United States and Canada are joining hands with the World Home Bible League in an effort to place a copy of Reach Out, the New Testament portion of The Living Bible, in every motel room on this continent, according to the Rev. John DeVries, international director of WHBL.

The project is about two years old at this point and has been set up in 32 states and three provinces. Of the 1,200,000 motel rooms in the United States, 200,000 have had Reach Out placed in them.

Paradoxically, the aim of the project is to have transients take the New Testament with them, and to encourage Bible reading in this way. One month this summer 100,000 copies of the modern English New Testaments were taken by tourists. Printed on most hotel Bibles are the words "Please Leave In Hotel Room."

By the end of 1974, DeVries says the league plans to have contacted all the U.S. motels. An annual turnover of more than three million New Testaments is anticipated.

Inserts in each copy of Reach Out invite tourists to take the New Testament with them and to enroll in an interdenominational Bible correspondence course sent out from the local church which distributes the Bibles. Over 10,000 people enrolled in the Bible course in that month.

The World Home Bible League is an interdenominational Bible distribution agency with headquarters in South Holland, Ill. It was founded in 1928. Today its annual budget is more than three million dollars, and the league is working in 50 countries around the world.

The World Home Bible League, in cooperation with the New York Bible Society, is responsible for the publication of 95 per cent of the translations produced by Wycliffe translators.

During the next five years the World Home Bible League is undertaking a campaign to bring a gospel portion of every literate person in India. The organization is a service agency which works through existing churches and mission points.

Reach Out is a paraphrase of the original New Testament translated by Dr. Kenneth Taylor, who heads Tyndale House Publishers which produces this version and The Living Bible. Taylor spent 14 years in paraphrasing his Living Bible, which now has 12 million copies on the market.

The effectiveness of the Bible distribution ministry is seen in this true story:

A rather discouraged and lonely young serviceman was spending his last night in the U.S. in a motel room in southern California. He noticed an unusual looking New Testament called Reach Out on the bedside tabl Curious, he began to read. It was illustrated with modern pictures and, to his surprise, the text was in modern English, too, and he understood it.

Later, the church which had placed that Reach Out in the motel received this letter.

"Thank you for leaving the new Bible in the motel. It brought me closer to God at a time when I needed Him most. I have read the first 25 chapters of Matthew and can't seem to take my eyes off the Word.

"Please send my wife a copy of Reach Out. She divorced me for what I did to her before I left. She didn't think I would change. Bless you people for giving me a chance with God again. I hope my wife and daughter will benefit from Reach Out as much as I did."

Churches interested in this ministry receive an attractive manual and a cassette commentary on the manual, without charge, from the World Home Bible League. After listening to and reading the details, the church makes a decision to participate in the motel program. Acharter is signed and the church applies for a territory and an initial order of materials is sent.

About a month later one of 15 full-time representatives throughout the United States and Canada contacts the church and offers additional help.

Be Sure Before You Sign Contracts, State Advises

Every sales, service, or work agreement you sign is probably a contract. Contracts can be long or short and don't always look legal or binding. There are usually two parties to a contract--the seller and you, the buyer. Each has the same right and obligation to "live up" to its terms.

Before you sign a contract read it thoroughly. Be sure any writing is clearly understood and legible. Your signature on a contract means you have agreed to all its terms and provisions.

If something in a contract does not apply to you cross it out. If the seller won't accept it, you don't have to sign it. Be wary of statements by the seller who says, "Pay no attention to that because we never enforce it." The paper you sign is what counts.

If blank spaces appear in the contract, draw a circle with a line through it (0) in the blank spaces before you sign to prohibit anyone adding something at a later date. Once you attach your signature it's difficult to prove the saace was blank when you signed.

Generally, verbal representations are not legal unless they are in the contract. Don't depend on oral promises--insist all promises and agreements be written into the contract before signing.

Obtain an exact copy of the contract at the time you sign it and keep it in a safe place. If it is not a carbon copy, have it signed by the person who made it out and have them acknowledge in writing that it is an exact copy.

Know with whom you are dealing. A contract is absolutely worthless if the seller disappears after you have paid and before he has delivered the merchandise or rendered his services. A contract is never a substitute for dealing with honest, reputable businesses.

Court To Rule On Pay

About 80,000 state employes must await a U.S. Supreme Court ruling to learn if they will receive $83.4 million in retroactive pay hikes, a federal judge says.

A preliminary injunction issued against the state by U.S. District Court Judge Phillip C. Wilkins stalls the planned lump-sum payment of the money to the state employes.

"This matter has to await the decision of the U.S. Supreme Court," Wilkins said in issuing the injunction at the request of the Federal Government."I can't figure it any other way."

The nation's highest court is considering a similar case involving Ohio state employes.

Asst. U.S. Atty. Brewster Morgan told the court that the California case must not be settled until a judicial determination is made in the Ohio dispute or legal chaos could result.

Letter To The Editor

Editor:

On Thurs. afternoon, May 2nd, some of us senior citizens played a game of shuffleboard on the court outside, to the rear of the Adult Center on Hilby Ave., in Seaside. We are members of the Seaside Senior Citizens Club.

We forgot to take the equipment inside the building after the game. It was discovered the next day that three of the cues and two of the discs were missing! We understand that in the evening there was quite a crowd nearby to watch youngsters playing ball, nearby — in the vicinity of the Adult Center.

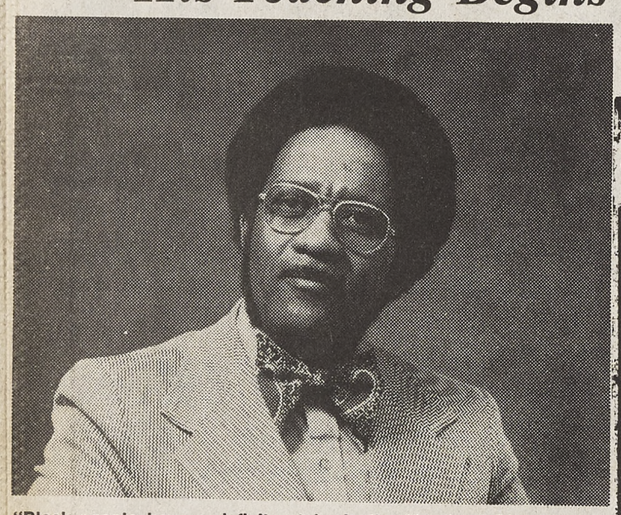
Did some concerned citizen notice who made off with the cues and discs? Will they report it to the police? We have notified the authorities about the theft.

Young or old who steal are a blot on a locality. They make life more difficult for all. A society cannot exist if there is no morality, no honesty, no fairness, no kindly feeling for people and their property.

I hope that somehow some good citizen will let the police know who took the material and help restore it to the Adult Center's Senior Citizens Club. Otherwise, I shall have to pay for it our of my own pocket as I checked out the equipment to play the game that day.

With best wishes,
Sincerely yours,
George Herman, Marina

When School's Out His Teaching Begins



"Black people have a definite stake in the March of Dimes," says California high school principal Alex Angel. "We can't talk about Black Survival without beginning at the very beginning—with the prevention of birth defects and the reduction of infant mortality. And that's what the March of Dimes is all about."

Children with birth defects now have a guardian angel. He is Alex Angel, principal of the John Morse Elementary School in Sacramento, Calif., and president of the newly formed Volunteer Advisory Committee of the Sacramento-Mother Lode March of Dimes Chapter.

None of his own five children has a birth defect, but that doesn't stop him from sympathizing with some 250,000 American infants each year who are stricken with a physical or mental handicap.

Mr. Angel first became actively involved in the March of Dimes when he was vice principal of the Upton Junior High School in San Bernardino County in Southern California.

"It was the students who got me interested," he confesses. "They had a 'MOD Squad' at school, and were extremely concerned about human ecology, and the quality of life. I had to get involved to keep up with them."

Before long, he was a member of the Executive Committee of the San Bernardino Chapter.

When his family moved to Northern California, this dedicated volunteer contacted the Sacramento Chapter to offer his help. It wasn't long before he was elected vice chairman of the eight-county chapter.

In his first year in that post, Mr. Angel has attended school board meetings to discuss distribution of March of Dimes information to students. He also has enlisted the cooperation of the P.T.A. in sponsoring a series of "Be-Ins"—where youngsters and their parents view and discuss films about major causes of birth defects, such as drugs and venereal disease. He also has taken charge of a successful telethon to raise money for March of Dimes research and medical service programs.

"Super-cooperative, sincere, aggressive, creative, dynamic, the detail guy you can depend on," are the ways his co-workers describe Mr. Angel.

Building Black Involvement

Why does a busy educator like Alex Angel spend almost all of his free time on March of Dimes projects?

"I know the need," he says. "I regard this volunteer work as an expansion of my work in the schools—an attempt to help all children develop into productive and healthy human beings."

At times the volunteer work and the regular job overlap.

"Recently," Mr. Angel recalls, "I was able to get psychological help for a trainable mentally retarded child who just entered our school."

Fans need To Think

The Atlanta Braves and Henry Aaron, the most prolific home run hitter in the game, visited the San Francisco Area last week. There were a great number of fans who attended the game just to see Aaron. Some, a small portion, were upset when he didn't play in both games.

In fact, one young man was so upset that he threw an orange in the Braves dugout and hit Aaron ont the head. This is never supposed to happen in San Francisco, at least according to some sports writers in that city.

Whether it is supposed to happen or not, is not the issue, the issue is the disregard that this person had for the safety of an athlete. An eye could have been lost because of this cowardly act. Fortunately nothing happened to Aaron to halt this playing days.

It is time that sports fans, ALL sports fans realize that no single athlete is going to please the public all the time, after all these people are human just like the guy that works from 8-5. When this fact is accepted; they will find the players more co-operative when asked for autographs or smiles.

Attend the games you want, if you don't want to, no one is going to force you to spend your hard earned money. However if you do attend and resort to acts which can rile a player, be prepared to take the consequences, after all if you pull such a stunt on the streets you just may have to pick up your teeth.

S. African Company Challenged

New York, — For the first time, a South African-controlled company, headquartered in the United States, was challenged by a U.S. church shareholder.

Engelhard Minerals and Chemicals Corporation was challenged today by the Reformed Church in America, a stockholder, to disclose pertinent facts about the company's involvement in racist South Africa.

Engelhard has entered contracts to purchase large quantities of platinum from South Africa for use in catalytic convertors to reduce auto air pollution emmissions in the United States.

"We want to breathe fresh air," stated William Howard, executive director of the Reformed Church's Black Council, "but not at the expense of South Africa's exploited Black workers."

Howard represented his church's 26,000 shares of Engelhard stock in presenting a motion before stockholders at the annual meeting held at the Waldorf Astoria Hotel.

Engelhard responded in its proxy statement that disclosure of information about its South African platinum purchases "would expose the company to the risk of serious commercial disadvantage".

Mr. Howard challenged this assumption claiming, "in areas where the rights of human beings are so deeply involved, there is no right to confidential information: there can be no corporate secrets".

"South Africa's Black miners suffer some of the worst conditions in the world", declared Rev. Donald Morton, an exiled white South African, himself a former gold miner. Rev. Morton spoke in favor of the resolution on behalf of the United Church of Crist Center for Social Action.

The Reformed Church spokesman stated: "Engelhard must come up with the facts if it is to avoid the charge that it is profitting from the injustice perpetuated on the Black majority in South Africa."

In his statement to the shareholders, Rev. Howard noted that elections were held the previous week in South Africa, returning the "white supremacist government of John Vorster" to office.

"But 85 percent of the people of South Africa were not even allowed to register for that election. They were Black," Rev. Howard stated.

He urged the shareholders who support the right of South Africa's Blacks to vote, to cast their shares in Engelhard in favor of the church proposal.

The Reformed Church action is part of the efforts of the ecumenical Church Project on U.S. Investments in Southern Africa, coordinating church shareholder challenges to twenty-two American corporations involved in white-ruled areas of Africa. Earlier, seven of nine companies approached for similar information about South African involvement agreed to send the requested information to all shareholders.

THE MAN FOR 74
JOE ALIOTO
The Action Democrat for Governor
MAYOR JOE ALIOTO
Our Man for '74
Do you care that the average workingman can no longer get his kids into our State colleges and universities?.
Are you bothered that our State Workmen's Compensation system, which was the best eight years ago, is now one of the worst?
Does it bug you that your taxes keep going up while the economic royalists continue to escape their share through loopholes?
Joseph L. Alioto is concerned about all of that and much more—and he wants to do something about it.
As Mayor, he's been a friend—a close friend—of working men and women and their families.
It isn't by accident that he has been able to personally settle more than two dozen major disputes — often by working straight through the night.
In this fashion, he's prevented bitter, costly and divisive long strikes—strikes which often have crippled a city, such as those of cemetery workers, teachers, and hospital workers.
And as a result of these personal mediations, the workers have won just and deserved pay increases and benefits.
It is no wonder that in his last re-election as Mayor that Joe Alioto captured virtually the unanimous endorsement of every labor organization in San Francisco—the AFL-CIO COPE convention, ILWU, Teamsters, the Union Labor Party.
But producing labor progress and labor peace isn't Joe Alioto's only talent.
For it isn't by accident either that Alioto has been directly responsible for thousands of new jobs, through new development and housing, and kept a City not only cool but growing.
As Governor, he will direct that same talent and drive for more and better jobs throughout the entire State.
And working shoulder-to-shoulder with him will be representatives of rank-and-file workingmen and women from all parts of the State and all parts of the labor movement.
For as Mayor of San Francisco, Joe Alioto has introduced more workingmen and women to government offices and commissions than most of his predecessors combined.
In fact, he has a great many ideas already on how he can and will increase the voice and the hands of the working people of California in the public affairs of California.
For example, he has already promised labor he will fight for:
• Extending the State minimum wage to men as well as to women —and making it a decent minimum wage we won't be ashamed of.
• Instituting unemployment insurance for agricultural workers.
• Restoring the vitality and efficiency of all of our Workmen's Benefit programs, primarily by letting friends rather than enemies of working people operate them.
Won't it be great once again to have a Man in Sacramento in the Governor's Mansion that the average working guy can talk to and relate to on the crucial issues?
Give Joe Alioto a listen. You'll like what you hear.

New Legislation Would Deal With Crime in The Schools

The first piece of federal legislation dealing with crime in the schools is incorporated in the Elementary and Secondary Education bill which comes up for final passage soon.

It is an amendment introduced by Senator Alan Cranston (D., CALIF.) calling for a $375,000 survey to help schools pool information on how crimes can most effectively be deterred or controlled.

The survey will also try to determine the causes, seriousness, frequency and incidence of school crimes with reports to be disseminated nationally every six months over the next two years.

The Cranston amendment was approved by the Senate last Thursday. A similar provision, introduced by Congressman Alfonso Bell (R., CALIF.) is in the version of the education bill that has already passed the House.

"The federal government must help local communities stem the rising tide of violence and vandalism in the schools," Cranston said.

He estimates that efforts to deter school crimes and to repair property damage caused by crime "cost school districts close to $500 million annually nationwide."

Cranston, who is a member of the Senate Subcommittee on Education, lauded State Superintendent of Public Instruction Wilson Riles for creating a "blue ribbon" ad hoc committee to cope with violence in California schools. Riles announced appointment of the 25-member panel of prominent Californians on May 9.

"California, under Dr. Riles' leadership, is taking steps to combat the problem of school crime through task forces, citizen involvement in planning and discussion, and careful surveys of the effect of school and community attitutdes on student unrest," Cranston said.

"The federal government must do more to encourage this type of local action," Cranston declared. "Americans have long viewed education of their children as a national priority. The right to an education in an atmosphere free from violence and the threat of violence must be part of that top priority."

He estimated losses due to school vandalism at $2 million a year at the Oakland and San Francisco school districts and "close to $500 million annually nationwide".

"But crime's cost to the national spirit ad to the public's confidence in schools cannot be calculated," Cranston said. "Dollar statistics say nothing of the blighted prospects of millions of American children exposed daily to physical and emotional harm."

Cranston said Los Angeles schools have spent $10 million since 1966 in an effort to control crime and repair the damage done.

"That's $10 million that could have been spent on better education," Cranston said.

He said Los Angeles schools spent $2,021,000 for security agents last year, plus another $1 million for intrusion alarm systems.

IT IS JUST BECOMING A FAVORITE WITH ANOTHER GENERATION OF CHAMPIONS.

Bill Would Create New SBA Position

A new top level position at the Small Business Administration--Associate Administrator for Minority Business--would be created by legislation introduced by Senator Alan Cranston (D., Calif.) which has already passed the U.S. Senate.

"This new position is needed to provide vital access to minority businessmen when they need to get through to someone in authority," Cranston said. Cranston is chairman of the Senate Banking Subcommittee on Small Business.

"Because of SBA decentralization, each regional office runs its programs the way it wants with no direction or control from Washington," he explained. "As a result, a minority small businessman has no place to go when he gets conflicting advice from the regional SBA offices, and he has no one to protect him if he feels he is being treated unfairly."

One of the minority businessman's greatest frustrations is his inability to get through to a faceless, unfeeling bureaucracy. He is often forced to waste precious time and resources fighting his way through red tape."

There already is an Assistant Administrator for Minority Enterprise, "but he has no policy or decision-making powers," Cranston noted. His job, under the Cranston bill, would be elevated to the top rank of three other Associate Administrators--those for Financial Assistance and Investment, Procurement and Management Assistance, and Field Operations.

Raising the Minority Enterprise program to the same administrative level as other major programs in the SBA will facilitate better Congressional oversight and uniformity of planning and execution," Cranston said. "It will also assure more effective monitoring of assignments and follow through and establish clear lines of jurisdiction and authority over the presently fragmented operation of the program within the SBA."

Other members of Cranston's subcommittee are John Sparkman (D., Ala.), chairman of the Banking Committee; Thomas McIntyre (D., N.H.); Bennett J. Johnson Jr., (D., La.); Lowell P. Weicker Jr., (R., Conn.); John Tower (R., Tex.); and Bob Packwood (R., Ore.)

Urges Televising Hearing

Rep. Ronald V. Dellums today joined in sponsoring legislation to televise the impeachment hearings before the House Judiciary Committee. The resolution would amend the House rules to allow electronic media to cover open committee meetings along with the print media.

"As the Judiciary Committee enters the crucial state of the impeachment inquiry, it is imperative that the public receive more than a filtered version of the historic impending proceedings," Dellums said. "It is of the utmost importance for the public to understand what impeachment is all about by watching and listening to the investigation as it unfolds."

Red Cross Luncheon Scheduled

Sheldon Williamson, manager of the American Red Cross Western Area, will address the joint annual luncheon meeting of the Berkeley and West Contra Costa Co., Red Cross Chapters on June 6 at Hs. Lordships on the Berkeley Marina.

Members of both Chapters and the interested public are invited to attend the 12:15 luncheon and a social hour beginning at 11:30 a.m.

Mr. Williamson came to Western Area as Manager in the fall of 1973 after serving as Deputy Manager of Eastern Area for four years. As a member of the National Red Cross staff, he was sent to Washington, D.C. to participate in the study which resulted in the establishment of Red Cross [illegible] parts of the United States for administration of the organization's activities.

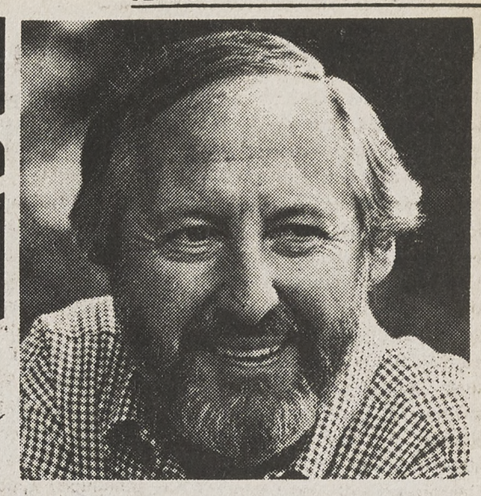
MORGAN FLAGG



A WINNING DEMOCRAT FOR CONGRESS
16th DISTRICT

At last we have a citizen Democrat who can defeat the Nixon-Talcott big money machine!

MORGAN FLAGG IS THAT CANDIDATE:

Flagg is a successful businessman, community leader, and family man.

Flagg has been in the forefront of helping Democratic activities in our area for the past decade — and is the only Democratic candidate who can count on substantial Republican backing in the general election.

Flagg will give long needed service with full-time district offices, regularly scheduled constituent days, and a staff of people from the district who understand the problems of the district.

Flagg is his own man . . . no one will own him . . . and the "Special Interests" can't get to him.

Elect LARSON & MAHONEY to The Airport Board - June 4th

WHAT DOES THE AIRPORT MEAN TO SEASIDE? DEL REY OAKS? EAST MONTEREY?

● Neighbor

The Airport must be a better neighbor. We must develop ways of talking with each other and straightening out the problems which come up from time to time between the airport and its nearby residential and commercial areas.

(Carl Larson, resident of Del Monte Beach, has been speaking out to the Board about these problems, for the past three years. As a member of the Board he can speak more effectively for Airport neighbors.)

● Employment

Income producing businesses at the Airport should be selected for the jobs they will provide local residents. We don't need outside businesses which add to the housing problem, and don't hire local residents.

CARL LARSON...an Airport neighbor
...lives in Monterey at Del Monte Beach within "hearing distance" of the Airport. A three-year close observer of the Airport and Airport Board meetings, Larson is a business consultant with 18 years business experience — six of those self-employed. He is a World War II Air Force veteran, ground crew and flying crew, received a Master's Degree in Business Administration from Stanford University, and was an Assistant Professor of Marketing at San Francisco State University for six years.

● Taxes

Reduction of the Airport District property tax should be continued by adding income producing businesses at the Airport. Neither the F.A.A. or the E.P.A. require an Airport tax rate as a basis for receiving federal grant funds. The Airport can operate without a tax rate and relieve the taxpayer.

● Noise

New businesses and activities at the Airport should not increase our noise problem. Congestion, air pollution, or safety hazards should not be multiplied at the Airport. The Board must always look to the effect of its actions upon Airport neighbors and the unique quality of Monterey Peninsula that is the basis of our tourist industry economy.

● Public Convenience

Airport neighbors deserve convenient airline schedules, friendly courteous services, parking facilities adapted to public convenience, and efficient limousine service, as do Peninsula visitors. The Airport must return to its old policy of operating with public convenience as its first concern.

JOHN (Sandy) MAHONEY...an airman-businessman
...is a 24 year resident of Monterey, owns an insurance business in Monterey, flies his own plane for business and pleasure, is an Honorary Kiwanian (15 year member), and member of professional, airmen's, and sportsmen's associations. Mahoney, a World War ii Army Air Corps veteran, former member of the Monterey City Advisory Committee, in his third 4-year term on the Monterey Library Board of Trustees, and attended the University of Detroit and Stanford Graduate School of Business insurance management course.

The Late Great Duke: A Man To Love Madly

By Kay Greaves
Assistant Editor

Early on Friday morning, the beautiful spirit of Edward Kennedy Ellington shed the mortal coil. Lung cancer, complicated by pneumonia, was the cause of death.

Few knew that the last six weeks of his ebbing life had been spent in an oxygen tent in the hospital where he died.

Few knew that one lung had been removed half a year back, that he had only half a lung left when the dreaded pneumonia set in.

And few knew that following an operation the incision did not heal properly. The maestro, impatient with illness, had emerged for a round of performance dates, then had collapsed in action — the action he had loved all of his life — and been forced to return to the hospital room in New York.

Still, he had high hopes of continuing the life he loved. A West Coast tour loomed, but some of the dates had to be canceled. He planned participation in his 75th Birthday Tribute Week at Stanford University, but his condition worsened and that commitment, too, was foregone.

When his beloved friend and fellow musician Paul Gonsalves died suddenly in Paris at age 53, a few weeks ago, the Duke was not told the depressing news.

The maestro's long-awaited 75th birthday came and went, inhis hospital bed. The weeks away from his beloved keyboard dragged on until the end came on May 24.

He loved us all madly, as we all loved him. But music was his mistress, as he explained in his autobiography, published in 1973 by Doubleday, in these revealing sentences:

"Living in a cave, I am almost a hermit, but there is a difference, for I have a mistress. Lovers have come and gone, but only my mistress stays. She is beautiful and gentle. She waits on me hand and foot. She is a swinger. She has grace. To hear her speak, you can't believe your ears. She is ten thousand years old. She is modern as tomorrow, a brand-new woman every day, and as endless as time mathematics. Living with her is a labyrinth of ramifications. I look forward to her every gesture.

"Music is my mistress, and she plays second fiddle to no one."

To attempt to write a full and fitting tribute in half a page — either to Duke the composer-performer or Ellington the person is an awesome, if not impossible, task. There are 13 closely-written pages listing his international honors and awards, in the back section of "Music Is My Mistress." On the next 32 pages appear listings of selected Ellington discs and compositions, encompassing the years from 1923 through 1973.

But the Ellington book is more, far more, than a recital of accomplishments and honors. It reveals his very personal qualities and thoughts as the world's most unusual musician and perhaps its most important composer.

Here are a few random passages which illustrate his candor, his faith, his optimism, his innermost thoughts.

On Faith

"How does one manage without God?"

On the Future

"Gray skies are just clouds passing over."

On Favorite Tune

"The next one — the one I'm writing tonight or tomorrow, the new baby is always the favorite."

On Inspiration

"I don't think it is easy to define or analyze. If you stop to analyze it, you're going to louse it up real good! Suppose you go out in your garden and cut a flower. 'It's a gorgeous flower,' you decide, when you come back in the house. So you put it in some water, trim the stem, and give it proper care. Maybe you like it so much that next day you put an aspirin in the water. But if you start to pull it to pieces, and take the petals off, and examine the veins that run through it — then you may know everything about it, but you don't have any more flower! Which brings us to another point: I don't think people have to know everything about music to appreciate it or enjoy it."

On Age

"Talent and ability are neither young or old. Agedness is only vaguely related to chronology. Without know-how, nobody is nothing."

On Illness

"One must be aware of possible ups and downs, and try to be in position for one more turn of the wheel."

On Philosophy

"One must always conserve the agreeable or positive. It is not expedient to try to like or enjoy the negative."

On Emotion

"I think the artist's true position is that of an observer. Personal emotion could spoil his piece de resistance."

On Travel

"It's a constant pursuit, and we just keep on going. There is always some place we have never been, and while we are waiting for the opportunity to go there, we just keep circling, like airplanes do, until the fog clears. We get in the pattern until we can move to a new level and, eventually, to a new place — by invitation, of course."

On Jazz

"We all worked and fought under the banner of jazz for many years, but the world really has no meaning. What is the relationship between Guy Lombardo, Stan Kenton, Count Basie and Louis Armstrong — all of whom people regard as playing jazz? Music is limitless."

22,000 Democrats and 1 Republican.

22,000*. That's how many Democrats voted for Republican Assemblyman Frank Murphy in 1972. Nearly 40% of all Democratic votes cast.

This year, in fact, no Democratic Assembly candidate will appear on the June ballot. We think it's because Frank Murphy has worked just as hard for Democrats as Republicans. So do a lot of other people. Here are some of the groups and individuals who endorse Frank Murphy:

- California Labor Federation, AFL-CIO Committee on Political Education (COPE)
- Russel Hansen, Secretary Monterey County Building & Trades Council, AFL-CIO
- Herman Cornell, President Santa Cruz County Central Labor Council, AFL-CIO
- California State Council of Service Employees, AFL-CIO
- United Brotherhood of Carpenters & Joiners, Local 1323, Monterey
- Teamsters Union, Local 912 Watsonville
- Peace Officers Research Association of California (PORAC)
- William Leever and Larry Lawrence Golden State Mobilehome Owners' League
- Arnold Hamilton California State Employees Association (CSEA)
- Agnese Martineau, Carmel Delegate California Teachers Association State Council
- Lucille Scholefield, Monterey Member California Teachers Association
- Robert S. Beckett, Watsonville Member California Teachers Association
- Donald J. Swiess, Carmel Valley Member California Teachers Association

On June 4th Democratic voters of Santa Cruz and Monterey Counties can draft Frank Murphy as the Democratic nominee for the 28th Assembly District by writing in his name on the brown ballot envelope provided at the polls.

The Middle East Goes On

Tom Berkley

Henry Kissinger just lost his valiant fight to negotiate a peace settlement in the Middle East but the Middle East crisis is not a new thing and Mr. Kissinger should not feel that he alone was the one who failed. The Middle East crisis has been going on for thousands of years and may go on for thousands more. I was browsing through the Bible the other day and would suggest that Mr. Kissinger read 1 Kings 22, which starts out as follows:

"For three years there was no war between Syria and Israel. But during the third year, while King Jehoshaphat of Judah was visiting King Ahab of Israel, Ahab said to his officials, 'Do you realize that the Syrians are still occupying our city of Ramoth-gilead? And we're sitting here without doing a thing about it!'

"Then he turned to Jehoshaphat and asked him, 'Will you send your army with mine to recover Ramoth-gilead?'

"And King Jehoshaphat of Judah replied, 'Of course! You and I are brothers; my people are yours to command, and my horses are at your service. But, he added, "We should ask the Lord first, to be sure of what he wants us to do.'

"So King Ahab summoned his four hundred heathen prophets and asked them 'Shall I attack Ramoth-gilead, or not?'

"And they all said, 'Yes, go ahead, for God will help you to conquer it.'

"But Jehoshaphat asked, 'Isn't there a prophet of the Lord here? I'd like to ask him too.'

'Well, there's one,' King Ahab replied, 'but I hate him, for he never prosphesies anything good. He always has something gloomy to say. His name is Micaciah, the son of Imlah.'

'Oh, come now!' Jehoshaphat replied. 'Don't talk like that.'

"So King Ahab called to one of his aides, 'Go get Micaiah. Hurry!'

"Meanwhile, all the prophets continued prophesying before the two kings, who were dressed in their royal robes and were sitting on thrones placed on the threshing floor near the city gate. One of the prophets, Zedekiah (son of Chenaanah), made some iron horns and declared, 'The Lord promises that you will push the Syrians around with these horns until they are destroyed.'

"And all the others agreed. 'Go ahead and attach Ramoth-gilead,' they said, 'for the Lord will cause you to triumph!'

"The messenger who went to get Micaiah told him what the other prophets were saying, and urged him to say the same thing.

"But Micaiah told him 'This I vow, that I will say only what the Lord tells me to!'

"When he arrived, the king asked him 'Micaiah, shall we attack Ramoth-gilead, or not?'

" 'Why, of course! Go right ahead!' Micaiah told him 'You will have a great victory, for the Lord will cause you to conquer!'

" 'How many times must I tell you to speak only what the Lord tells you to? speak only what he tells you to?' the king demanded.

"Then Micaiah told him, 'I saw all Israel scattered upon the mountains as sheep without a shepherd. And the Lord said, Their King is dead; send them to their homes.'

"Turning to Jehoshaphat, Ahab complained, 'Didn't I tell you this would happen? He never tells me anything good good. It's always bad.'

"Then Micaiah said 'Listen to this further work from the Lord. I saw the Lord sitting on his throne, and the armies of heaven stood around him. Then the Lord said, Who will entice Ahab to go and die at Ramoth-gilead? Various suggestions were made, until one angel approached the Lord and said, I'll do it! How? the Lord asked. And he replied, I'll go as a lying spirit in the mouths of all his prophets. And the Lord said, That will do it; you will succeed. Go ahead. " 'Don't you see? The Lord has put a lying spirit in the mouths of all these prophets, but the fact of the matter is tht the Lord has decreed disaster upon you.'

"Then Zedekiah (son of Chenaanah) walked over and slapped Micaiah on the face.

" 'When did the Spirit of Lord leave me and speak to you?" he demanded.

"And Micaiah replied, 'You will have the answer to your question when you find yourself hiding in an inner room.'

"Then King Ahab ordered Hicaiah's arrest.

"Take him to Amon, the mayor of the city, and to my son Joash. Tell them the king says to put this fellow in jail and feed him with bread and water-- and only enough to keep him alive-- until I return in peace.

"If you return in peace,' Micaiah replied, 'it will prove that the Lord has not spoken through me.' Then he turned to the people standing nearby andd said, 'Take note of what I've said.'

"So King Ahab of Israel and King Jehoshaphat of Judah led their armies to Ramoth-gilead.

"Ahab said to Jehosaphat, 'You wear your royal robes, but I'll not wear mine!'

"So Ahab went into the battle disquised in an ordinary soldier's uniform. For the king of Syria had commanded his thirty-two chariot captains to fight no one except King Ahab himself. When they saw King Jehoshaphat in his royal robes, they thought, 'That's the man we're after.' So they wheeled around to attack him. But when Jehoshaphat shouted out to identify himself, they turned back. However, someone shot an arrow in random and it struck King Ahab between the joints of his armor.

" 'Take me out of the battle, for I am badly wounded,' he groaned to his chariot driver.

"The battle became more and more intense as the day wore on, and King Ahab went back in, propped up in his chariot with the blood from his wound running down onto the floorboards. Finally, toward evening, he died. Just as the sun was going down the cry ran through his troops. 'It's all over--return home! The king is dead!'

"And his body was taken to Samaria and buried there. When his chariot and armor were washed beside the pool of Samaria, where the prostitutes bathe, dogs came and licked the King's blood just as the Lord had said would happen."

All this happened before Christ. Men's follies go on and on. How can we hope to end the thousands of years of struggles between Israel and Syria in just a few short months of negotiations around a table in Switzerland?
